The Barbecue at Middletown.

On Wednesday, according to announcement, a barbecue was given in Frye Lawrence's woods. The crowd was not so numerous as we had anticipated, but nevertheless, several hundred gathered there.

A large number of candidates were on the ground, big with speech, and hopeful of the support of their fellow-citizens. Music and the dance, good eating and its accompaniments, were the delight of the youngsters, while the grave and patient seniors gave close attention to the speeches on the occasion.

Col. Marshall led off in a speech one hour and a half, which was confined mainly to the discussion of the Nebraska-Kansas bill. The Colonel is no lover of this measure. He had not made up his mind whether he would have supported it or not, had he been in Congress at the time it became a law. He was wonderfully shocked with the idea that aliens who had declared their intentions only were clothed with the right to vote in those Territories, thereby making them equal to native Americans in the territorial elections. He would have opposed it on account of this feature, but was not prepared to say whether he would or would not have voted for the bill.

This material issue of Col. Marshall's own raising he was most unfortunate. He charged Col. Preston with trying to provision in the Nebraska-Kansas bill allowing foreigners to vote in those Territories after declaring their intention to become citizens of the United States, before their first papers were obtained. The Colonel professed to have a great abhorrence of this liberality to foreigners, as in due bound. He had previously gone so far as to say that he would suffer his right arm to be severed from his person before he would vote for such a provision.

All this looked very well, and the brethren felt happy to see how zealous the Colonel was for Americans ruling America.

Col. Preston, however, had an old record—the Congressional Globe, containing the proceedings of Congress in organizing Oregon Territory. It reads thus:

The fourth section was then read, the part in gallus being the same for the committee in New York.

"SEC. 4. And it is further enacted, That these shall be, and hereby are, granted to every white male settler or occupant of the public lands, where the age of eighteen years, and no more than forty-five years, and who shall become a resident thereof for three years, and shall have resided upon and cultivated the same for four consecutive years, and shall have paid taxes thereon, the quantity of one half section, or three hundred and twenty acres, and to every white male settler, if he shall become married within six months from the day of December, eighteen hundred and fifty, and thereafter, to himself, and the other half to his wife, in her own right, and the Surveyor General shall divide the same for her, and the Surveyor General shall divide the same for him, and the husband and that to the wife, and enter the same on the records of the Land Office, in cases where such married persons have complied." etc.

The question being on the first amendment proposed by Mr. E. W. Wade, the following was voted:

Mr. MARSHALL moved to amend that amendment by inserting after the word "years," in the sixth line, the following:

"Being American citizen, or having made declaration according to law, of intent to become a citizen."

Mr. THURSTON spoke to the general from Kentucky, and Marshall said to him his amendment was to be voted on.

Mr. MARSHALL said he was willing to withdraw his amendment if the gentleman from Oregon had an amendment to it, and was willing to accept the same.

The amendments of Mr. Thrusdon were agreed to.

Some time after the enacting clause in the words "now residing," and insert:

"That the right to liberty is granted to every white male settler or occupant of the public lands, American half breeds included, members and servants of the army and navy, and Page School Agricultural Company excepted."

Also, a second proviso to the fourth section in "And provided further, That all foreigners making claim to lands in Oregon, shall be required to receive a title to the same, shall prove to the Surveyor General that he has commenced and completed his improvements, and to whom he has given his name, and he shall be entitled to his own, his own, and his heirs."

If any carrier fail to deliver the Democrat promptly, word left at the office will remedy the neglect.

YEARLY advertisers will please hand in their favors as early as they conveniently can, during the day.

Don't forget that at the Barbecue, to be given at Woodland Garden, on Monday, Col. Preston and H. Marshall will both address the people.

Don't forget that the Floating Palace is down at the wharf—don't forget that your wife and children, your mother and sister, and sweet heart want to see all the curiosities. Go by all means, and take them along.

We again call the attention of our friends and the balance of mankind to the special notice of Carpenter, Swayman & Co. It is an acknowledged fact, that their Daguerreotypes are superior to any made in the city. Rooms 57½ Main street, between 5th and 6th.

QUOTE.—At 10 o'clock last night we were handed the Cleveland Morning Leader of yesterday morning, and the N. Y. Herald of the 18th—only some 15 or 18 hours from Cleveland and 40 from New York. They came via the Little Miami, Ohio, and Mississippi and Jeffersonville Railroads. We are indebted to our friends of Elliott's eminence.

Stabbing Affair.—Last night, shortly after 10 o'clock, Mr. W. Clark was down at the river in the neighborhood of the Floating Palace, fanning himself, when a couple of men stepped up, and in a rough manner, as we are informed, demanded the fan—he refused; words ensued, then threats, and the result was that Mr. Clark drew his knife and cut them both. One of them is terribly cut about the breast. They were all arrested and will be tried this morning.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.—The Council, in session last night, did a good deal of merely local business, such as passing claims and appropriations, ordinances for paving side-walks, &c.

The Mayor directed the Mayor to pay over to Capt. Thompson the $15,000 of the city bonds for the Stadler wharf.

They passed a bill paying for stone work on the Beaubien ent-off.

In reference to the opening of additional premises in each of the large wards of the city, we believe nothing definite was done.

VERMONT.—The State Know-Nothing Council held a meeting at Burlington on the 11th, approved the withdrawal of their delegates from the National Council, declared themselves dissatisfied from its government, resolved against the extension of slavery, and proposed to oppose any new slave States, in favor of the repeal of the Fugitive Slave Law, the restoration of the Missouri Compromise, an open avowal of their proceedings, and membership, and the admission of the "American Party of Vermont."

Mrs. ROBINSON.—The Albany Knickerbocker has an interesting statement touching who the murderer, Mrs. Robinson, really is. The facts are gathered from a revelation made by Mrs. R., some years since, to a person from the vicinity of the place where she was born. According to this story Mrs. R. is the daughter of Admiral Paganum, of Pagum Castle, Longford, Ireland. She fled from Longford to hide her shame, having been seduced by a son of her father's steward, who brought her to New York, where he left her penniless, after two years. From New York she removed to Troy where she became the mistress of certain well-known gentlemen of that city. From Troy she went to Albany. She resided there for some time and then returned to Troy, where she became restless and dissipated, and where she committed that murder for which she is now under sentence of death.

THE BOYS TAKING THE HINT.—While we were down on the R. L. Cobb last evening, after she returned from her trial trip, we were witness to a little transaction that shows the spirit which is going abroad through the country. A young German hand on the boat went ashore to attend to some duties—hardly had he reached the wharf before he was attacked by a crowd of boys, one or whom with much violence charged him with something, which he flatly denied. There were some ten or twelve of the boys, between the ages of ten and sixteen years. The dispute proceeded but a minute before one of the boys began to threaten the young Dutchman—remonstrated—a moment more and a boy of some 14 years struck him about the head with a stick nearly two inches thick, breaking it; he turned and took away the stick, but made no effort whatever to retaliate.

No sooner did he take away the stick than the entire crowd attacked him with stones. Still he did not retaliate, but reasoned; he had too much respect for his own young manhood to touch a boy. Several stones hit him, and he might have been seriously hurt had not Capt. Watson ordered him to come on board. This little affair did not result in anything serious, but it might have done so. We heard one of the boys exclaim, "We are home boys," meaning of course they were native-born.

The Falls City Hotel.

Messrs. Bibb & Son opened a house on Main, between Seventh and Eighth streets, under the name of the Falls City Hotel. The building they occupy has long been used as a public house, but it has been so strangely metamorphosed that the guests of the old Western Hotel would scarcely recognize it.

From cellar to garret the house has been completely overhauled. Everything is new, sweet and renovated—the parlors, hall, office, barroom, &c., are upon the first floor, and all fitted up in admirable style. The dining room is capable of seating more than one hundred persons comfortably.

The house is well ventilated back and front, and a spacious yard renders it even cooler than houses generally in the same neighborhood. It will accommodate with lodgings comfortably about one hundred persons.

To this house we especially refer our country friends visiting the city on business or pleasure. Tobacco growers will find it situated between the two warehouses, and within a stone's throw of either.

Mr. B. is as well known as any hotel keeper in the city. He has kept successively several boarding-houses in the city—and has long been proverbial as a good feeder. In fact he has only fed to well—one have ever failed him on that account.

His son is a young man of much experience, and we speak for both an abundant share of patronage.

RIVER AND WEATHER.

FALLING.—The river was falling last evening, with six feet seven inches in the canal by the mark.

The weather yesterday was as hot as on the previous day, perhaps hotter in some instances; a pleasant breeze very much modified the heat where it could be felt. The mercury rose in the shade during the hottest part of the day to 90°.

TRAIL TRIP.—The R. L. Cobb went up some six or eight miles on a trail trip. A company of some 20 or 30 Indians and their families enjoyed the trip. Her machinery worked to admiration, and Capt. Watson is delighted with his boat, as well he may be. She will go out on Saturday for Clarksville and Nashville. Send your freight.

THE DAILY DEMOCRAT.

Burying the Dead Slave at the Storming of the Mamelon.

The following are extracts from a letter to before Sevastopol, dated June 12:

There was an armistice a little after noon to-day, which lasted nearly four hours and a half, for the purpose of burying the dead. Officers of all the troops, and others, were sent to the Mamelon, and were received into familiar intercourse. The superior Russian officers were very polite and affable, but some of the lower grades, as well as the men generally, wore a sullen and resentful look. The men appeared fatigued and tired. There were several general funerals, and we buried us a good deal of injury on several occasions.

An incident, which, at the time, produced a very singular effect, occurred during the armistice, about an hour after its commencement. While officers and men of different regiments, and indeed in the nests of the camp, between the Mamelon and Malakoff hills, some exchanging cards, segars, or entering into other civilities, and while the operation of conveying and burying the dead was still going on, it was suddenly observed that the fire was being opened. It was natural to suppose from whence the idea came, but it originated with an instant all armistice was at an end, an abrupt taking place, and French and English were hurrying toward the Mamelon in one direction, and Russians the other way, towards the Malakoff hills.

As the distance from the camp was small, and the operations of the army of the armistice overthrown, many of the English and French did not return. The fire was still going on the left, and it was supposed that the smoke rising from a small explosion in the direction of the Greenhill attack had caused the sudden alarm.

Among the bodies brought on this occasion was that of Lt. Edward Henry Webb, of the 8th regiment, who fell in the attack on the Quarry. He was pierced by seven or eight wounds in various parts of his body, when he was struck. It was seen to have been disabled by a bullet shot in the leg only, some of them must have been inflicted after he was on the ground. He was found lying some way in advance, and to the right of the Quarry.

He was a remarkably brave young officer, and had particularly distinguished himself in the career of arms, and especially by his conduct while in command of sharpshooters.

There is a story told, on good authority, connected with the sudden temporary retreat of the French from the Mamelon redoubt, after they had first seized it, which deserves to be mentioned.

A Russian officer, who had been captured and was kept in the redoubt, as a prisoner. He had been kindly treated by some French officers; they had given him some water and wine, and had afterwards given him a cigarette. The Russian had scarcely got this aight, when, turning round a little, saw a Frenchman, who had been captured and charged shells which were lying in a small heap near at hand. An explosion took place, not itself of much importance, but it raised an alarm that the redoubt was mined, and that the mines were about to be discharged. An instant escape was made. Just as the greater number of the French, who had advanced up to the ditch of the Malakoff, came retiring back, and this event added to the confusion, out of which the enemy did not fail to extract a temporary advantage.

The action was concluded about 9 o'clock, and a heavy fire was again commenced against the Russian works.

The Ristori's success at Paris is unabated. The Atene Francais, which withheld its opinion for a month, says of her at last, that "she is probably the first actress, and certainly the most powerful, that has ever graced the stage." On June 21, she played Schiller's "Mary Stuart" for the first time. The correspondent of the New York Com. Advertiser says:

"While preparing in the last act for her execution, and while endeavoring, upon her knees, with the dagger in the crowd, which she pressed to her bosom, to detach herself from the hand of death, she easily tears, her face undergoes a change such as no French audience has ever before beheld; she turns deadly pale; life, physical life, seems to abandon her, while through her eyes, which alone remain with the shells the glory of the retreating exotic spirit. Never before has there been such a scene as I saw it then, rapt, lost, withdrawn, eager for its liberation. The audience wept and howled, and then release their agony, broke into long and resounding acclamations. The actor performing the part of the confessor was so moved, that he burst into tears."

"Ratched leaves here for America, in a Collins steamer, in the first fortnight of August. By some she is described as being heart-broken, by others as consumed with jealousy and rage."

SCHEIPS.—If there be no faith in our words, of what use are they?

Honors come by diligence; riches spring from economy.

Time flies like an arrow, days and months like a weaver's shuttle.

He who can suppress a moment's anger may prevent many days sorrow.

Past events are as clear as a mirror; the future as obscure as varnish.

The generations of men follow each other like the waters of a swollen river.

Doubt and destruction on earth—the brightness of truth in Heaven.

To correct an evil which already exists, is not so well as to forest and prevent it.

By a long journey we know a horse's strength; so by degrees of days a man's heart.

Do not anxiously expect what is not yet come; do not impatiently regret what is already past.

Of all the evils of life, the mind is capable of, none, perhaps, will surpass that which attends the relief of an avowed enemy.

The spontaneous gifts of Heaven are of high value, but the strength of perseverance gains the prize.

TRUTH.—This word is pure Solomonism, and is commonly heard from the coasts of Dalmatia to Beijing's Straits, when any of the popular living within those limits are called on to give proof of courage and valor. The origin of the world belongs to the primitive idea that every man that dares to meet his fate comes straight to the shock and ardor of battle, the combatants either that cry, as the Turks do of Allah! each animating himself by the certitude of immediate recompence, to forget earth and contemn death.

Detraction, Observer.

AS ECENTRIC MILLIONAIRE.—A letter from Ghent, in a Brussels paper, says: "The great subject of conversation here, at present, is the imminent war, lately led on by Mme. Clae Decou. It is said that she has a sum of $100,000,000, and four female servants; 400 a year, to each of the workmen at her spinning factory (and they are between 4 and 500 in number); the factory itself to one of the foremen, and all the plans, machinery, and tools, to another. She has bequeathed her country house to her nieces, and the rest of her property to a Mr. Boppe, who is not in any way related to her."

AGREE.—We have picked up the following waf and give it a record:

A lady and gentleman disputing upon a subject, the lady testily remarked: "You are a bore in anything."

"You are wrong," said the gentleman; "if you should go into a room in which there were but two beds, a woman in one and a man in the other, with whom would you sleep?"

"With the lady, of course," replied she.

"So would I," the gentleman replied.

A FRENCH "BULL."—Monsieur Jaquemin, once in an address to the electors of Paris, observed, with a vehement shrug of the shoulders, "Gentlemen, I have shed all my blood for my country, and I am willing to shed it again."

AN INSURANCE.—A Saratoga editor, in his paper of the 5th, asks one of his contemporaries, "Do you remember anything which occurred on the afternoon of the 4th?"

While the armistice lasted, the Russians were seen to be working with the greatest energy in repairing some of the mischiefs done to the Malakoff Tower by the French. Some were bringing sand-bags, others were carrying them away. It was subsequently found that they had taken advantage of this brief cessation of hostilities to make a small howitzer battery on the right of the Malakoff Tower, and in the rear of the other works, in such a position to cross in line of fire the right bank of the Dnieper, which had caused us a good deal of injury on several occasions.

An incident, which, at the time, produced a very singular effect, occurred during the armistice, about an hour after its commencement. While officers and men of different regiments, and indeed in the nests of the camp, between the Mamelon and Malakoff hills, some exchanging cards, segars, or entering into other civilities, and while the operation of conveying and burying the dead was still going on, it was suddenly observed that the fire was being opened. It was natural to suppose from whence the idea came, but it originated with an instant all armistice was at an end, an abrupt taking place, and French and English were hurrying toward the Mamelon in one direction, and Russians the other way, towards the Malakoff hills.

As the distance from the camp was small, and the operations of the army of the armistice overthrown, many of the English and French did not return. The fire was still going on the left, and it was supposed that the smoke rising from a small explosion in the direction of the Greenhill attack had caused the sudden alarm.
